Student Series

Empowering Youth: It’s all about you!
Enhances each student’s understanding of the importance of self-advocacy and how it relates to the secondary transition components in their Individualized Education Program (IEP).

It’s YOUR IEP… It’s YOUR life! Reviews the transition related components of the IEP to increase the student’s understanding of how it is a useful tool for planning for life after high school.

Taking it to the next step, pulling it all together! Enhances the students’ ability to understand what happens in an IEP meeting and how to use self-advocacy to promote successful post-secondary transition planning.

Professional Development Workshops

Planning for Life after High School
reviews the steps and the transition planning components in the IEP as required by IDEA 2004 and the NH Rules. Also included are examples of how parents can be involved with their child, the school and IEP Team in planning for life after high school. Designed for parents and guardians.

Promoting Family–School Partnerships
introduces a new framework for designing family engagement initiatives. This framework helps to develop knowledge, confidence and skills that build capacity among educators and families to partner with one another around student success. Designed for school administrators and parent leaders.

Learning Outside of the Classroom explores the key features of high quality Extended Learning Opportunities (ELOs) and the role of students, families, educators and community partners in developing and implementing ELOs. Designed for parents, guardians, staff unfamiliar with ELOs.

Asking The Right Question
Despite their significance, skills to develop focused questions around important issues are rarely taught. This simple, straightforward, strategy helps all individuals learn how to produce, improve and prioritize their questions, to increase communication and shared decision-making. Designed for families, students and a train-the-trainer session for school staff.

Planning for a Successful Transition
This interactive workshop discusses the importance of listening to your child’s voice when discussing the future, what to consider before your child becomes a legal adult, and how to start building independence during the high school years. Designed for families and students.

Walking in their Shoes: Communicating with Families
Understanding the differences between positions and interests can be key to opening the door to problem solving with families. Learn about family challenges, roles and what the research says is critical to developing professional partnerships with families. *Designed for school staff who work with families during the transition process.

Let’s Agree on a Way Forward: Managing Difficult Conversations
Even with the best intentions, sometimes IEP Teams must have difficult conversations or may find themselves in conflict. Discover and apply different practices to move forward when these situations arise. This session will expand your ability to convert difficult situations into collaborative solutions. *Designed for families and school staff.

These workshops are offered at no cost to Next Steps NH schools participating in Next Steps NH and can be adapted to 90 - 120 minutes. For more information please contact:
