Next Steps NH is offering a FREE online training - Promoting Family/School Partnerships on February 15, 2018 to high school teams of 3 or more participants. This 2-hour online training will be offered via ZOOM. (Snow date – February 16th)

During this session, Kimm Phillips from NH's Parent Information Center will introduce the Dual Capacity-Building Framework, authored by Karen L. Mapp and Paul J. Kuttner and published by SEDL in collaboration with the U.S. Department of Education. This framework helps to develop the knowledge, confidence and skills that build capacity among school professionals and families to partner with one another around student success. Kimm will also review strategies and resources specifically created for and used by schools that have participated in Next Steps NH to increase and sustain family engagement practices throughout the transition process.

Strategies include:

- * Developing Family Engagement Teams
- * Using a focus group approach to gain the parent perspective
- * Resources for planning and executing district and regional Transition Fairs
- * Information about workshops and training sessions offered to school professionals, parents and students
